

RANDOM ACTS

Stars can be so unpredictable... in good and bad ways.

WHO: MEL GIBSON

HE DID WHAT? While on personal business in Singapore, the Oscar-winning actor-director donates $25,000 to a charity for underprivileged kids.

RANDOM ACT OF KINDNESS: No, he didn't do it to promote the DVD release of Apocalypto or anything related to movies. Mel was in town to support the bid of UK-based company Green Rubber Global — in which he has a stake — to list on the UK stock market. He also found time to sup at Banana Leaf Apollo Restaurant in Little India, and leave a small part of his millions to the Kidz Horizon Appeal, a local charity for sick and needy children.

OUT OF CHARACTER: At the press conference to announce the donation, the man is charming to a fault, although he declines to talk about work. Asked about his future projects, he quips, "I'm going to get a pedicure later! No, no, I'm busy. I have so much stuff going on. If I told you it would bore the pants off you."
